French State gives advice on avoiding scam websites

[With thanks to The Connexion for this advice]: Every year, one million people in France are estimated to be fooled by false administrative websites – leading to identity fraud and stolen funds – costing at least €1.5million, according to the Ministry for Economy & Finance. The advice comes from (<http://www.lefigaro.fr/conjoncture/2018/09/16/20002-20180916ARTFIG00178-le-gouvernement-alerte-les-internautes-contre-les-faux-sites-administratifs.php>). It focuses on websites offering national administrative tools that are usually free. The advice includes checking that any official site for administration ends in the web address “gouv.fr”, or “.fr” as a minimum, but even sites that appear legitimate, such as with a ‘fr’ or using République Française imagery – such as Marianne or the tricolor – may not be. Users are therefore also advised to cross-check web addresses with the official list of French administration sites at <http://www.service-public.fr> as your starting point for official tasks. Some fraudulent websites may come up higher in search engine results than the real ones, so it is important to double-check sites, even if they appear reputable. Users should also check if a particular service is free or not, and stay alert if a website asks for money or bank details for something that should be free.

Lest We Forget

73 years after the end of WW2, the identity tag belonging to 1st Lt Thomas Wesley Crosby was returned to his son in Kansas. Lt Crosby was one of the crew of the B17 bomber "Scrappy Mike", which was shot down over Evreux on 13th August 1944. "Scrappy Mike" crashed near St Clair-de-Halouze (61) - of the 9 crew, only he was able to parachute out. Although he landed safely, Lt Crosby was captured by the Germans near Lonlay l'Abbaye and later shot. The 8 other bodies were buried in the commune and later moved to the cemetery in Colleville-sur-Mer. Ten years ago, a Tinchebray resident came across the tag, and research discovered that Lt Crosby had been 22 years old at the time and his body had been returned to Kansas in 1949. As a result of this detailed research, this year L'Association Normande du Souvenir Aerien 1939-1945 Orne-Maine organised for the identity tag to be sent to his very grateful family in Texas.

That's all for this month. As a reminder, do please keep in touch, just once or twice a year is good, as if I don't hear from anyone for over a year I tend to take them off my distribution list, as people have been known to leave the area, or change their e-mail address, and not let me know, so this way I can keep my list 'fine-tuned'!
